

I ENTER INTO SILENCE

I enter into the silence.
I want for nothing.
I rest in anticipation and expectancy of peace..
In silence there is just me.
Just me soon subsides.
Thoughts arise but they slow and disappear.
Is there anything besides ?
Everything is united.
There is no other.
I and the father are one.
Father, thy will be done!

HE PRAYS

Selected poem-prayers by justme
Images by CatrinPhoto

SILENT MOMENT

Silent moment kiss my face, perfect moment perfect place.
Silent second steal away, gentle breath warm
I pray.
God is with us, God is here, quiet Father always near.
Spirit souls on our way, another challenge to fill this day.
Trembling hearts behind the scene, lets us know, we all have been to a place we hide, from all, a secret cave of hurt and fall.
Yet get ye off your swollen knees, chase your chains with thoughts that frees ground
For the mighty are mighty when we are on the
The king is king in kingdoms he found.
The great are great while man kneels and lies Come my brother, come let us rise !

HE PRAYS

To him who has, shall it be given,
the choice of man, man now living.
Wander ye, among the thorns,
clinging he, his heart forlorn,
For a greater good, not told to man,
for man has known, yet man, has no plan.
Yet settle he, upon the earth,
feel the touch, the touch of birth,
he looks around and sees no pain,
no human pull, no human gain.

He prays